

ALPHA POINTE CAPITAL

Is this the 90's?

You remember the 90's right?

Beany Babies, Grunge Rock, Spice Girls, Cassette tapes, and need I say more?

Funny how trends come and go but even more interesting is how trends repeat themselves...

Trends often get makeovers and reappear at interesting times.

Remember Pokémon Go? Instead of Pokémon trading cards it became a virtual treasure hunt to find your favorite characters, so 2016.....

What I am seeing is the market is showing some semblance to the trading activity we witnessed in the late-90's. R

Remember seeing the surge in tech stocks, with pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies following closely behind. It appears that we're seeing some of it again!

Generally looking back those were crazy markets and you needed to have an active strategy with risk management in place to manage your portfolio. I believe that is the same for today just with some modern tweaks!

Unlike the Rotisserie Oven where you "Set it and Forget it" with your chicken perfectly done, your portfolio generally needs more attention.

OK I get it, no more 90's references for now but I'll keep an eye out to see how closely today markets resembles past ones.
